

Waste & Recycling News

Crain's news source for environmental management

Waste & Recycling News is the only environmental management industry newspaper that delivers the news vital to the industry, including the solid and hazardous waste, air pollution and wastewater segments.

Published 26 times a year and distributed every other week in print, every business day online and via daily e-mail alerts, Waste & Recycling News reaches thousands of decision-makers throughout business, industry and government with news stories on the companies that generate and manage waste.

The editorial mission of Waste & Recycling News is clear: report what's happening in environmental management fairly, accurately, on-time and without bias. This is the cornerstone of maintaining a strong and loyal subscriber base.

Every edition of the newspaper features timely news and relevant information about how industry issues will affect companies and how the fact-based stories can help them make more informed business decisions for their organizations.

Waste & Recycling News delivers an impressive target market of environmental management professionals who are focused on the ever-changing environmental and social challenges of today's world.

As the only environmental industry newspaper, Waste & Recycling News' award-winning reporters and editors uphold its editorial mission by consistently delivering a comprehensive package of news, analysis, in-depth features, useful statistics and opinion in every edition of the newspaper.

*Editor,
Allan Gerlat*

*Reporter,
Joe Truini*

*Managing Editor,
Peter Fehrenbach*

*Tracy Hayhurst,
Correspondent, Illinois*

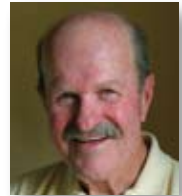

*Associate Editor,
Megan Greenwalt*

*Chrissy Kadleck,
Correspondent, Ohio*

*Senior Reporter,
Jim Johnson*

*Walt Wiley,
Correspondent, California*

*Senior Reporter,
Bruce Geiselman*

*Roger Renstrom,
Correspondent, California*